

Design and fit-out

Northern Rail recently celebrated the opening of its new office facility in York - the third in a planned series of relocations and refurbishments to be carried out for the organisation by Claremont Group Interiors.

The challenge at York began with feasibility studies carried out on the existing facility along with two other properties. The eventual decision to move was based on financial viability and the need for a transition from cellular office space to open-plan environment, facilitating a more collaborative and friendly working environment for the existing 250 or so staff members.

The new premises were a 1960s office block which was undergoing an external facelift and basic landlord fit-out. Claremont worked in conjunction with the landlord to amend and minimise the costs before delivering a unique tenant fit-out solution. Once on site, the project was fast-tracked with four floors of office space completed in just 12 weeks, handed over fully furnished, air conditioned and with specially-commissioned artwork and graphic branding in place.
